THE ALBANY FIGHT.

Conkling Continues his Personal Appeals to Legislators.

NO MATERIAL CHANGE IN THE SITUATION.

Both Sides Claim to be Satisfied, but both Uncertain and Uneasy—No Prospect of a Caucus till Monday—Etc., Etc.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE [illegible]

ALBANY, May 27.—Conkling [illegible] continued [illegible] of the Delavan today. [illegible] not expressed [illegible] as follows:

"My Dear Sir: I would like a few minutes conversation with [illegible] at the time and place of your [illegible]. Will you let me hear from you? Cordially yours,

ROSCOE CONKLING."

The situation remains as before and there is no prospect of a change. A deadlock is certain. It is rumored Conkling will make an address Monday evening. It is denied that Tilden is enlisted on Conkling's side.

Some 27 members agreed to meet Conkling in a friendly conference tonight, but not over half appeared. The conference was not held. It is said that absentees were influenced by the administration men to remain away. The latter decided tonight not to go into caucus, but to attend a joint meeting of both houses on Wednesday and vote for two candidates to be agreed upon hereafter. The names of Choate, Depew and Comptroller Wadsworth were talked of.

No change. Conkling will return on Monday. The capital is deserted. The real division will not be known till a vote is taken on Tuesday.

The Evening Post Transfer—Other Newspaper Changes.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—A New York special to the Ledger says of Schurz and the Evening Post: In the streets there are reports that a large infusion of fresh capital will accompany the change, and that the Oregon Navigation Co's. people in this particular are the parties in interest. The value of the Post, apart from its real estate, is said to be about one million dollars. The change will also make something of a stir in political circles. White, formerly of the Chicago Tribune, is an uncompromising free trade man. Godkin of the Nation has had extensive experience in journalism, and will impart new value to the literary department, while Schurz will take care of the political features in a way that will probably provide ample employment for his exponents. Reports of scarcely less important changes in other city papers are current.

Conkling's Strength.

ALBANY, May 27.—The latest count shows Conkling to have 35 of the 105 legislators. This gives them the right to call a caucus, or would, if they had 35 signatures to the call, which they have not. They count several birds in a bush as do their opponents. Conkling and Arthur go to New York to-morrow, and the stalwarts claim that everything will be settled by Monday and are happy. The administration men are by no means despondent.

As Viewed by the Correspondents.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Albany special to the Evening News: Conkling probably will not return here. Many who signed the call for the caucus tonight, won't consider themselves bound to the call for Monday night, and a formal caucus is very improbable. A deadlock is expected Tuesday. Conkling's only hope is the arrival of Grant and his influence in his favor. The opposition say that even Grant would be ineffectual.

Herald's Albany: Conkling is sure of election by democratic votes and will accept them.

Commercial's Albany: The stalwarts are more confident than yesterday. Many of them have gone home. The half-breeds' boasts have subsided.

Brooklyn Eagle's Albany: Judge Robertson is well satisfied and says that the administration people made no mistake. The fact is that Conkling and Platt are beaten. If they adjourn the legislature we will be glad to [illegible] among the people. Conkling will return Monday and make a public speech.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

A Memorial to Beaconsfield.

LONDON, May 27.—Strong feeling from all parts of the country has manifested itself in favor of raising a memorial to perpetuate the memory of Beaconsfield. A committee [illegible] all the prominent conservatives and many noblemen has been formed for that purpose. At a preliminary meeting the committee resolved that the memorial should comprise a statue of the earl to be erected in London, and an executive committee will be appointed to receive subscriptions.

The Land Bill in Committee.

LONDON, May 27.—In the commons today the first division taken in committee on the land bill was on an amendment offered by Lord Fitz Maurice, liberal, the practical meaning of which was to postpone other parts of the bill until the constitutionality of the land court is settled. Division resulted in success for the government by a vote of 286 to 163. Northcote spoke in favor of the amendment and Gladstone against it.

Staying Home.

LONDON, May 27.—Princess Louise, under medical advice, will not leave England until after July.

The Oarsmen.

LONDON, May 27.—Rowing men condemn the action of the committee of the Henley regatta in regard to the Cornell crew in the severest terms. They consider it disgraceful in delaying publication of refusal until so near the time of the Cornell crew's departure from America. It is thought, although the Cornell men did not comply with the rules that all entries should be made before the 1st of March, they should have been notified of refusal before. Whitefoot, editor of the Sportsman, who saw the Cornells' practice during his recent visit to America with Hanlan, says that they were rowing then in very good form and would doubtless have given a good account of themselves on this side.

The New Italian Ministry.

ROME, May 27.—Following is the new cabinet: Signor Depretis, president of the council and minister of the interior; Mizinani, finance; Zanardelli, justice; Baccarini, public works; Boccelli, instruction; Berti, agriculture; Mazzacura, war; and Martial, marine. Mancini was offered and declined the foreign bureau on account of health.

Slosson in Paris.

PARIS, May 27.—Slosson has just arrived. He will to-morrow publish a fresh challenge to Vignaux, offering to play him again in this city.

Running Away from Persecution.

BUCHAREST, May 27.—Despite measures to prevent immigration of Russian Jews, they are entering Moldavia in great numbers.

Bulgaria.

SOFIA, May 27.—It is generally believed that if the elections result adversely to Prince Alexander he will put Bulgaria before the constituent assembly once. The acceptance of his proposals is considered doubtful.

Gortschakoff.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 27.—Gortschakoff is expected here on the 2d of June.

Denied.

The report of the premature accouchment of Henry Heltmann is officially denied.

Ordered Home.

Admiral Lessoffsky, commanding the Russian squadron in the Pacific, has been ordered to return to St. Petersburg.

POLITICAL.

[From the Springfield Republican.]

There is a good deal of worry because Garfield has precipitated "a crisis in the party." Why, the crisis in the party isn't half big enough. If Garfield had made the fight in behalf of some intelligible principle, and not as between Blaine men and Conkling men, there would have been a growing and winning cause. A party which recognizes no principle but spoil needs a crisis and a bigger one than this.

About forty United States senators, all able-bodied, and with a perfect right to go to the capital to vote down any nomination, if they can—yet all hanging around the White House and bulldozing the president personally—this is the exhilarating spectacle now afforded from Washington. Garfield ought to put up a signboard in the White House grounds: "The senate chamber is at the other end of the avenue."

Conkling has reached the point in his career, sure to come to every boss, when the long line of men he has hit and kicked and cuffed on his way to power see their chance to make old scores even. The man who systematically kicks the ladder away as he climbs, has a long way to drop when he falls at last, and for twenty years Conkling has been kicking away one friend after another by whose help he has risen. They are after him now in full cry. He has behind him the organized appetite of the machine, and nothing else. Men like Conkling are not wiped out by a single defeat. He has power and resources possessed by few, but he stands alone in his present fight, and defeat will put him on the defensive in the attempt to control the party in New York state.

Postmaster-General James will get along very well in his fight for reform till congress meets. Then trouble will begin. Every route he has discontinued or on which he has decreased service and pay means money to some congressman's constituent. All over the south there are steamboat lines whose profits have been killed by the railroads—dependent on a star-route contract for their existence. These lines are a convenience to the locality, a very great convenience to the men who own them, and southwestern communities are extremely apt to gauge a member's success by the number of routes he secures for his district—just as a northern constituency [illegible] local manufacture is taken care of in the tariff. [illegible]

Execution.

[illegible] was hanged at Bakersfield today for the murder of [illegible] on the 18th of last February. He made a statement on the scaffold declaring his innocence and that the discharge of the pistol which killed his victim was accidental. His professed resignation to his fate and preserved a calm demeanor.

Submit or Demit.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

The people must give Mr. Conkling great credit for his sagacity. He knew that he must submit or resign. Vertiaubetis said of MacMahon in a similar situation, "Il faudra se soumettre ou se démettre." And he resigned. That is all there was to his act of yesterday.

King of the Blood [illegible], but in an all diseases attributable to impurity of blood and its defective circulation, nothing else equals its effect.

THE EASTERN STATES.

T. F. Oakes—Northern Pacific Rumors.

NEW YORK, May 27.—T. F. Oakes [illegible] Northern Pacific [illegible] Villard [illegible] city yesterday to spend a few days in [illegible] other points on the line of the Northern Pacific. It is stated that he is to be president [illegible] road and also that Gen. Haupt, recently appointed general manager, will be retained [illegible]. In conversation recently Villard said that a statement that the Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad is in the pool that has secured control of the Northern Pacific was absurd and that he did not know anybody connected with that company.

Villard's Suit Withdrawn.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Henry Villard's suit against Billings and the Northern Pacific has been discontinued.

A Successful Electric Railway.

BERLIN, May 27.—The first electric railway now running in the vicinity of Berlin is so satisfactory that a second is projected to run to another district of the suburbs. The cost of construction was only 27,500 per kilometre.

Foolish Children.

PHOENIX, May 27.—H. Westover's young daughter aged 16, living at Markesan, Wis., poisoned herself yesterday by swallowing a large quantity of baking powder, [illegible] and strychnine, because her father had forbidden [illegible] the house her lover Daniel Murray, aged 18. The latter learning of the girl's death, committed suicide with the same compound.

Murder in Arizona.

PHOENIX, May 27.—George McDonald, a miner at Tiptop, was killed Wednesday evening by Bud Blunt. He was shot twice in the left breast. Blunt was taken to Prescott.

Disastrous Collision Near Leadville.

LEADVILLE, May 27.—At 7 this morning a construction train was backing north from Bessemer when a south-bound freight train suddenly rounded a curve and crashed into the caboose of the construction train, containing 20 men, killing one and injuring 10 others. Following is a list of the dead and injured: Dead: Patrick McMann; fatally injured: John Williams, head cut and leg broken; Wm. Wright, leg broken in three places and bruised; Wm. Harrigan, leg broken and badly bruised; injured: J. A. Kirby, leg broken and bruised about the head; Ira A. Fry, head cut and thigh injured; John McFay, head cut; Pat Vaughn, bruised back and side; A. Chrust, bruised back and side; Dennis Mahoney, slightly injured. Those fatally injured will probably not survive the night. The dead and wounded were removed to Leadville.

A Nephew of Gen. Butler to Swing.

DENVER, May 27.—This morning's News says that W. H. Cardy, who is sentenced to hang at Colorado Springs June 17th for the murder of Buena Vista last April of Deputy Marshal Perkins, is a nephew of Ben Butler, and that his right name is W. H. Salisbury, of Salisbury, Mass. He was forced to leave home on account of his recklessness. Went to California, made a fortune in the gambling and saloon business, afterwards lost it all, and came to Colorado three years ago. He has two sisters, one married and wealthy, living at Lawrence, Mass. Since the murder his friends have been doing everything to save him. Massachusetts lawyers are here working in his behalf.

Murders in Tennessee.

KNOXVILLE, May 27.—A special from Bristol says: Jim Baker shot and killed Alexander Osborne and the two Riner brothers, and mortally wounded another man, name unknown, at Osborne's Post, Scott County, Virginia, yesterday. Jim Stapler killed Sam Gilgore at Nickelsville today. The difficulty is supposed to have grown out of municipal elections yesterday.

Thompson Denies.

[illegible], May 27.—J. P. Thompson denies that as sergeant-at-arms of the national house he sold out his business [illegible] and [illegible] have notified him of any shortage. Not having done so, none could have occurred.

A Nice Family Row.

[illegible], Ga., May 27.—Mrs. Toney [illegible] daughter today quarreled, [illegible] the [illegible]. Her father, coming home, nearly [illegible]. Both the mother and daughter are dying.

Trouble Brewing.

NEW YORK, May 27.—A strike [illegible].

Children Burned.

[illegible], May 27.—A [illegible] burned yesterday and four children [illegible] were burned to death. The family were [illegible].

WASHINGTON CITY.

Enforcing the Law.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Secretary Windom will [illegible] enforcement of the statute of [illegible] required by the revised statutes, which provides that every officer who neglects or refuses to make any return or report which he is required to make at stated times by any act of congress or regulation of the department of the treasury other than his accounts within the time prescribed by such act or regulation shall be fined not more than $1,000 and not less than $100. Three officers failing to make the reports required have been called upon by letter from Secretary Windom to explain their neglect to comply with the order and informed of the penalty that they have incurred thereby.

The Readjusters have Had Luck.

County elections in Virginia Tuesday were unfavorable to the readjusters, their vote showing a heavy falling off.

Yesterday's Virginia town elections put the democrats in high spirits, but the readjusters declare that no issue was presented to them. It is publicly that Riddleberger will be run for governor and will appeal for republican votes on the ground that he has been endorsed by a republican senate.

Clerk Adams in Bad Business.

Excitement has been created in Democratic circles over the misdeeds and misappropriations of money by one of the democratic officers of the house. It is understood that some $10,000 or $12,000 have been gambled away, and the person implicated is the present clerk, Mr. Adams, formerly congressman from Kentucky.

Thompson all Right.

Rumors of Thompson's shortage are evidently incorrect. His chief clerk shows by the books that every check has been cashed.

Must Go.

It is announced quite positively that Secretary Windom will make a number of important changes during the next month. Among those who are to go are Assistant Secretary Upton, Solicitor Raynor, Appointment Clerk Lamphire, Custodian Pitney and Chief Disbursing Officer Hobbs.

Trouble among the Maryland Democrats.

There is every prospect of a division in the ranks of the democratic party in Maryland. A large meeting was held in Baltimore last night at which several prominent democrats, including Gov. Hamilton, participated, and at which dissatisfaction at the present management of the party manifested itself. Gov. Hamilton spoke at length, and particularly in reference to the management of the finances as exemplified in the abandonment of the sinking fund and failure of reform measures introduced with his sanction at the last session of the legislature. The meeting emphatically endorsed the idea that there must be a change in the party management and the cliques that govern it. The meeting foreshadows a break in the party.

Treasury Statement.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Total customs revenues for May, $14,300,000; internal revenue, $12,300,000. Reduction of the debt for May will be over $11,050,000. There is no danger that Secretary Windom will relax his efforts to punish treasury officials guilty of misuse of public money. Private friendship will not save any one.

Doorkeeper Thompson in Trouble.

John G. Thompson, sergeant-at-arms of the house of representatives since 1874, is behind [illegible] money accounts with congressmen. He has been in the habit of drawing pay for congressmen and holding it subject to their order or check. He went beyond his means and now is unable to meet these checks. He has a bond but the law is such that his bondsman cannot be held. It is claimed that some congressmen have been accommodated beyond what was due them and that he will make up every dollar.

Coming Home.

A Slander Refuted.

The Evening Star says that the reports, rumors, insinuations and innuendoes that Secretary Blaine's recent visit to New York was for the purpose of smothering something damaging to himself or friends in connection with the star route scandals, were effectually squelched today by Postmaster-General James, who said that there was nothing in the star route development to disturb Blaine.

Search for the Jeannette to be Made on the Other Side.

Secretary Hunt to-day forwarded instructions to Commander Cooper, commanding the U. S. ship Alliance now at Norfolk, Va., to proceed on a cruise in search of the Jeannette, between Greenland, Iceland and the coast of Norway, and as far as the northern coast of Spitzbergen, if it is possible to get there without endangering the vessel.

Practically Dismissed.

The claims of Americans in Mexico for damage by French troops have been withdrawn from the French-American claims commission, the French government objecting that it was not responsible for acts of French troops after they passed under the control of Maximilian. The claims aggregate several millions.

THE VICTORIA HORROR.

Investigation Brings Out a Story of Gross Carelessness.

SEVEN HUNDRED PEOPLE ON A SMALL TENDER CRAFT.

Statements by the Captain of the Victoria and other Persons—A Passenger Describes the Horrors of the Scene—Etc., Etc.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.

London, Ont., May 27.—[illegible] to say [illegible] the Victoria [illegible] that the boat was [illegible] fully 600 passengers. [illegible] over 450. [illegible] had life-saving apparatus [illegible] the [illegible] on the upper deck [illegible] also when asked to keep [illegible] deck, some [illegible] strait. The engineer [illegible] purser and captain were [illegible] asked him to run the boat [illegible].

Mr. Parke, manager of the company, says that the boat was [illegible] great [illegible] and except for [illegible].

R. J. Montgomery, a passenger, [illegible] that the boat was greatly overcrowded. The passengers were quiet and orderly. There was no [illegible]. There was considerable water on the main deck, the starboard, which accounts for her listing to one side. When the [illegible] came the stanchions snapped like pipe-stems, and the whole wreck went down to port on the shore side into the water. Hanging on to an iron support he saw scores of men, women and children being drowned like rats in a hole and heard [illegible] shrieks on every side without the power of rendering aid. Mothers with eyes starting from their sockets would madly beat the water, while their colored [illegible] about their necks [illegible], until lost, smothered by water they went down with a screeching gurgle beneath the flood.

Further Details of the Disaster.

The number of persons on the Victoria is now known to be nearly 700, a burden out of all proportion to her strength and capacity. The crowd at [illegible] and the oscillation of the vessel which they increased by moving from side to side, [illegible] her sink, we will only [illegible]. Each instant caused the vessel to ship water to the terror of some and delight of others. When the supports of the upper deck gave way all was over and with a terrible crash the whole thing collapsed. At this time the upper deck was very nearly perpendicular causing a tremendous strain on the supports. Many were crushed at once, many thrown into the water and drowned, and many rendered unconscious and dazed. The steamer Princess Louise was alongside in 12 minutes, and her decks crowded. The search continues for bodies, many of which are terribly crushed and bore evidence of terrible struggles for life. The Victoria is a complete wreck. It is stated that her boiler slipped with the rocking of the vessel. Capt. Rankin says that there was a slight list going down, but that he could not keep back the crowds that boarded her on the return trip. He tried to make them leave the boat, but could only induce about 15 or 20. He also tried to make them move the upper deck, but in vain, except those steering, [illegible] a peculiar [illegible] [illegible].

The country languishes while the towns increase.

People say there was a "settlement," that papers were given up and the plaintiff soothed. If so the papers Dorsey got at last were widely different from those he was asking for awhile ago.

The tide runs as far as Portland, 200 miles from the ocean, and about the same at the Cascades, [illegible] from The Dalles to Wallula is [illegible] 7 feet above their [illegible] and 106 feet from The Dalles to Portland is not over [illegible] feet above the river at any point except at [illegible] on the Willamette, while its grades do not exceed one half of one per cent, or 26 feet per mile. As an example the grade from Washington street to [illegible] is one per cent. The grades from Ainsworth to Spokan Falls, 140 miles, no where exceed one per cent, or 52 feet per mile.

The road runs through the country of the dry [illegible] and [illegible], or possibly the paths of glaciers. They lie between basalt ridges broken at some points into other [illegible], yet for many miles along the route unbroken and well defined, preventing the view of the country on both sides. On this account the traveler sees little good land on the way and thinks there is none.

The road gradually rises on the western slope of the Cascade [illegible] mountains. At the summit, a distance to Providence valley, about 150 miles from Ainsworth, it is 1200 feet above the ocean; at Sprague, 175 miles, it is 1900 feet; at Cheney 201 miles, it is 2340 feet above, but it drops to 1900 feet at Spokan Falls. Pend d'Oreille lake, 67 miles beyond, is not more than 2400 feet above the ocean; thence up the Clark's fork of the Columbia in Montana it rises gradually to the summit or divide of the Rocky mountains, 4,500 feet high, not far from the head waters of Missouri or Jefferson fork. It is a valley route of easy grade comparatively.

WEST OF [illegible]

The courses of the streams, which flow into the Columbia river and thence to the ocean, indicate the courses of the exports to the markets of commerce, and the direction of the imports. Railroads west of the Rocky mountains can best afford to carry all the heavy products of that region to the Pacific for the world's markets, and to bring all the heavy merchandise from the [illegible] by the same routes. To compete with this traffic is to measure closely the essential force which constitutes transportation.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE ASYLUM.

A Report that Warrants are being Drawn in Excess of the Appropriation, and Criticism Thereon.

[illegible]

[illegible] the state treasury to be drawn for the construction of the insane asylum at Salem, to an amount beyond the sum which was appropriated and provided for by the tax [illegible] levied.

The legislature at the last session provided for the erection of the insane asylum building and to levy a tax and appropriate money therefor.

Section [illegible] laws of 1880, page [illegible], provides that:

"For the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act, there shall be and is hereby appropriated of the [illegible] money, now in the treasury or which may hereafter arise under an act entitled 'An act to provide for a tax to defray the current expenses of the state and to pay the indebtedness thereof,' approved October 20, 1878, the sum of $25,000 * * * to be used in the construction of said insane asylum, to be known as the 'Insane Asylum Building Fund.' And for the further carrying into effect the provisions of this act there shall be levied by the county court of each county at the same time and in the same manner as other taxes are levied, * * * an annual tax of one mill on the dollar, * * * to be denominated 'The Insane Asylum Tax,' * * * and collected at the same time and in the same manner * * * and when paid into the state treasury shall be set apart and known as the [illegible], and the same or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated for carrying into effect the provisions of this act."

It appears that $25,000, a body in the treasury or levied and in process of collection when this act was passed, is appropriated and beyond question is subject to the drafts of the secretary of state. But it is, I think, quite questionable whether a fund not in existence, simply provided for in the distant future, indefinite in its amount and possibly inadequate for the purpose intended, is subject to present draft. Yet it is reported that the officials in charge of the new asylum building are proceeding to use, as if already in hand, the full estimated amount allowed for the construction of the building in question. In other words the commissioners are contracting and the secretary of state is issuing warrants on a state fund that is not, but may sometime be in existence—the tax for which is not levied and cannot be for several months, and the payment of the full amount of which will require several years. The policy adopted in this matter is one liable to great abuse, and is very likely to prove burdensome to the state finances. A contractor holding on a contract when the money is so far off will surely expect compensation for delay in payment; if he is expected to complete the work on an empty treasury. Or on the other hand if the contractors may be presently paid by state warrants that are to be endorsed "Not paid for want of funds," and so bear interest for the [illegible] of the contractor or the money lender, then the state is made to pay a large premium in the way of interest for work or [illegible] of warrants [illegible] pre-paid, which is to prevent the legislature, in the interest of any ring of contractors or money lenders, entering upon state works ten years in advance of the taxes which is to pay for them, and by a pretended present appropriation, tax the treasury [illegible] interest on unpaid warrants [illegible] Section quoted above does not seem [illegible] adopt such a construction [illegible] by the secretary.

[illegible]

Light, More Light—Schools, More Schools!

Gambetta lately delivered a speech in favor of free education which has made quite a sensation in Germany. The concluding sentences show the leading argument which runs like a thread through the whole of it. M. Gambetta closed his speech with the following somewhat sarcastic parable:

After the year 1000 the people of France gradually learned to forget their fear of a destruction of the world, which had caused them to cover French territory all over with churches, but since the great national misfortune in 1870 our watchword has been "More schools!" And with schools we will cover French territory, north, south, east and west. Let us spread enlightenment and science! "Light, more light," said Göthe in his dying moments! This is my political creed and faith in the future of France. I know of no other. What we desire in our national republic is the tranquil, undisturbed development of law and order while we are progressing.

A Fair Parallel.

(San Francisco Alta.)

A widow in a New York village has been drawing a pension for forty years. The government has just discovered that her husband was never in the service, but was kicked to death by a horse. This is very much like the sort of partisan service rendered by many of the "leaders" and "bosses" who are party pensioners.

A well man who had been badly hurt in a railroad collision, being advised to sue the company for damages, said: "Wal, no, not for damages, I've had enough of them; but I'll just sue 'em for repairs."

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY [illegible]

[illegible] ELECTIONS.

[illegible] made to legislate out all the city officers [illegible]. Bills of various kinds were concocted with this end in view, among which the bill to reorganize the city government had a prominent place. All the professionals and adventurers who hoped to get a hand in it were at the capital to work the bill through. [illegible] they were successful. The police bill was passed and the amended charter after much trouble and wrangling was got through also. The [illegible] to legislate all the city officers out did not succeed; the police commission was abolished, and the terms of the mayor and other officers was extended from two years to three. The power of appointing the police force, including the chief of police was vested in the mayor, "with the consent of a majority of the members of the common council." The same authority has power to appoint the city attorney, surveyor, superintendent of streets, auditor and police judge, whose terms are to be three years, instead of two, as formerly. The object of those who made these changes was so to simplify matters as to enable them to get hold of the whole management and machinery of the city government in a single election, and to secure for themselves a longer tenure than the old charter allowed. The election to which those enterprising spirits looked forward is now at hand. They want to carry it and thus secure the fruit of their labor by obtaining at one stroke full possession of the city government, with undisputed authority over police, property, the numerous offices, improvement of the streets, management of the fire department, and all the various branches of the city's affairs,—in all of which the gentlemen who devote themselves to the noble profession of municipal statesmanship trust to find profitable employment. The movement of citizens, of which notice has been given, is a protest against this, as well as an effort to organize that protest and make it effective. There are few who are likely to deem it seemly or wise to allow the numerous interests of the city to pass into the control of a class of persons who work in municipal intrigue as a profession, and who have no other employment, occupation, or visible means of support. Hence the citizens' movement takes form. It is an attempt to make an effective organization against those who got the charter amended in the hope of being able to rule the city, and who now are preparing their final effort to that end.

SHIPBUILDING IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.

From reports made by consular officers of the United States in Great Britain supplemented by information from other sources it appears that ship-building continues very active in all the great ship-yards in the United Kingdom. So long ago as February last it was reported that the work then under contract would furnish employment for all the yards far into the year. In June last contracts were made for large iron sailing ships of the highest class at $52.52 to $61.75 per ton register, and for steamers, including engines of the best description and ample power at $58.67, or even less, in their dead-weight capacity. But since then the demand has been so great and orders so large that prices have materially advanced. Numerous contracts were made about the beginning of the year at prices ranging from $59.36 to $61.32, for iron sailing vessels of the first class; and since then there has been still another advance. Some contracts have been made as high as $65 per ton. Even at the highest figures yet paid these ships are said to be profitable investments. Several reasons are assigned for the unusual demand. One is the great loss of tonnage last year, which was quite unprecedented, amounting to over 3,000,000 tons under the British flag alone. Another is the enormous importation of food and other agricultural products into the United Kingdom. Second-hand sailing ships sell at prices much advanced over those of last year. Ships twenty to thirty years old have realized from $31.57 to $38.93, and those sixteen to twenty years old from $38.93 to $40.23, while younger ships have been sold at from $18.67 to $53.53, varying in ballast requirements and general good condition. The old British and colonial build are reported by the trade to have met with readier sales than at any time during the past few years, and there is said to be no difficulty in getting fair prices for them. These figures are furnished mainly by Consul Packard at Liverpool. They are a contribution to the information of a people who are interested as we are here in the cost and supply of tonnage in the chief commercial and ship-building country of the globe.

NATIONAL STATISTICS.

One of the most valuable compilations of statistical matter ever published in the United States is the "National Statistical Abstract," the third number of which gives in a condensed form highly interesting figures, which illustrate by comparison the wonderful growth of the country. The statistics presented are partly of a sort which come within the scope of the government's operations, and partly of a general nature. We make room for a few comparative statements. In 1837, when Jackson retired from the presidency, the number of postoffices in the country was 11,767, the revenue of the department was $4,236,000, and the expenditure $3,544,000. In 1880 the number of postoffices was 42,989, the revenue $33,315,000, and the expenditure $36,542,000. In 1840 there were just 23 miles of railroad in operation in the United States, and by 1845 the number had been increased to 4633 miles. In 1879 the number of miles in operation was 86,497, and the number constructed during the year was 4721. There were more miles of railroad built in the country in 1879 than during the first 15 years after the beginning of the railroad period. Illinois takes the lead in railroad mileage, with 7578 miles, followed by New York and Pennsylvania, with 6006 and 6268 miles respectively. Illinois also has the honor of paying more internal revenue than any other state, her amount for 1880 standing at $23,003,614, against $18,018,058 for Ohio, and $16,249,877 for New York. The increase in the production of fermented liquors during the last decade is significant in view of the prohibitory movement which has recently sprung up in many of the states. In 1870 the quantity produced was 203,000,000 gallons, while in 1880 it had increased to 413,500,000, or more than double. This great increase undoubtedly indicates an increasing popular fondness for beer, for whereas the consumption of beer, ale, wines, etc., was 5¼ gallons per capita in 1870, in 1880 each person was able to consume 8½ gallons. The capacity of the people to absorb beer has increased over 50 per cent. during the last ten years. When in addition to this it is noted that the production of distilled spirits in 1880 was [illegible], or nearly two gallons of whisky per head, it is evident that the era of total abstinence [illegible] fairly inaugurated. The [illegible] national government for the [illegible] promises to be fully $[illegible] estimated a year ago by [illegible] thority as Secretary Sherman [illegible] 000,000.

It begins now to be apparent that C[illegible] had he known how intractable the New York [illegible]

[illegible] would not [illegible] last year it fell short of [illegible] three and four millions, which was a [illegible]

EXCURSION TO THE CASCADES.—Commencing today the Oregon Railway & Navigation company will sell excursion tickets to the Cascades and return at $2 50 for the round trip. Tickets are good only to the downward bound boat, which usually meets the up boat midstream near Warrendale, a few miles below the Cascades. The trip gives excursionists an opportunity to view the magnificent scenery about Cape Horn, Rooster Rock, and Castle Rock and the Bridal Veil falls, and to return here in time to transact half a day's business.

ACROSS EAGLE CREEK.—A very substantial bridge has just been completed across Eagle creek in Clackamas county. This bridge is thirty feet above the water, with a span of sixty-six feet, and aprons twenty and thirty feet long respectively. The county furnished the lumber, irons and hewing amounting to about $150. The work was done by road labor and demonstrates what can be done in the matter of bridging by a live, practical, energetic supervisor. About eighty days' labor was put in.

BACK AGAIN.—Mr. Charles Christy, who went up to Pendleton about three months ago and assumed charge of one of the papers there, has returned to the city. His health was quite poor during his residence there and he returns much reduced in flesh. The climate did not agree with him and he will probably not return.

IMPROVED LANDING.—The East Portland landing of the Jefferson street ferry has just been improved by about one hundred and forty feet of plank bridge above high water mark, leading from the old landing to the railroad grade. The new work at U street insures regular landings during the summer freshets.

STEAMER SOLD.—United States Marshal Kearney sold the little steamer Clatsop Chief in obedience to order of the United States court. The craft was purchased by Richard Everding and the price paid was $150. Experienced boatmen state that Mr. Everding has secured a good bargain.

TRIAL TRIP.—The very handsome little steamer Fleetwood, under command of Capt. [illegible], will make her trial trip this morning. She will leave [illegible] wharf at [illegible] o'clock.

AN AFTERNOON PARTY.

The very pleasant custom of giving afternoon lunch parties, which in the last few years have become nearly obsolete in Portland, is being revived. Mrs. H. Thielsen entertained a number of her friends last Wednesday, at her residence, corner East Park and Salmon streets, with such a party. It was a delightful affair—full dress, small tables for four, easy chairs, fine flowers, splendid repast, uncommon sociability—with all the elegance of an evening party and good feeling of an informal dinner. Among those present were Mrs. M. H. Holbrook, Mrs. Thayer, Mrs. J. B. Congle, Mrs. J. B. Wyatt, Mrs. G. Williams, Mrs. O. E. Withington, Mrs. R. Weeks, Mrs. J. M. ten Bosch, Mrs. P. J. Mann, Mrs. R. AN ELEGANT ESTABLISHMENT

Is that of Isaac Barman, corner of First and Washington streets, now that the painters, carpenters, plumbers, etc., have completed their work and the store has a chance to "show up." To-night the counters will be covered with seasonable goods, and the big show windows will be handsomely dressed and lighted up. [illegible] will be ready for business and accommodating to all visitors. A general invitation is extended the public to visit and inspect the establishment.

THE BRITISH BANQUET.

Celebration of the Sixty-second Anniversary of Queen Victoria's Birthday.

[illegible]

Strawberries, Fine Apples, Oranges.

It was after [illegible] before the dinner was over and when the president arose and gave the first toast, "The Queen." The company responded with cheers, bumpers of champagne were drank, and [illegible] "God Save the Queen."

The next toast was "The President of the United States," also proposed by Mr. Macleay, drank with enthusiasm and followed by the "Star Spangled Banner."

"The Prince and the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the royal family," were next toasted, and the splendid air "God Bless the Prince of Wales" rang out.

The president called upon Judge Matthew P. Deady to propose the next regular toast, "The British Empire." Judge Deady said:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the British Benevolent Society: This day we meet to celebrate the 62d anniversary of the birth of the good Queen Victoria, the woman who has been at the head of the British empire with honor and renown for the last 44 years of the most eventful century of the world's history. And this empire, what is it, and whence came it?

Fifty years before the commencement of the Christian era, during a breathing spell in his Gallic wars, Caesar made a hasty descent from the opposite coast upon the then almost unknown island of Brittania, situate in the far northwest of the then known world. This exploit resulted in the conquest of the country by the Romans for five centuries thereafter, as far north as the Firths of Forth and Clyde. Beyond this [illegible] their eagles never dared to soar.

Then came the decadence and downfall of the Roman empire, and the sturdy [illegible] Angles, Saxons, Jutes and Frisians swarmed across the German ocean [illegible]

[illegible]

This is the power of which a distinguished American orator and statesman once said in the American senate that "it has dotted over the surface of the whole globe with her possessions and military posts whose morning drumbeat, following the sun, and keeping company with the hours, circles the earth with one continuous and unbroken strain of the martial airs of England."

But there is another phase of the British empire, a phase which reaches over and beyond its material limits and possessions and asserts itself wherever [illegible] is found. I mean the empire of mind, which, with its effective instruments of language, law, custom and commerce is bringing the nations of the world into a common brotherhood. In witness whereof we are gathered around this festive board tonight to honor England's queen, as the representative of the English speaking race, including the 50 millions dwelling in the lands that [illegible] under "the broad stripes and bright stars," and are proud to call themselves Americans.

Hoping, then, Mr. President and gentlemen of the British Benevolent Society, that the [illegible] traveler from New Zealand will, when he comes, [illegible] from his stand upon the [illegible] arch of London Bridge and sketch not "the ruins" but the glories of St. Paul, I give to you the toast:

The British Empire. Esto Perpetua.

"Rule Britannia" was sung as only a company of Englishmen can sing it, followed by three hearty cheers. Mr. James Laidlaw, British vice consul, made an appropriate reply.

"The United States" was given by Dr. George H. Chance in a most happy speech. He spoke as the Briton born who honored his native land, and as the American citizen who loved his home. The reply by Congressman M. C. George was eloquent and fitting.

"The State of Oregon," given by Mr. Kenneth Macleay, was answered by State Senator J. [illegible] of Polk county, who made a fine, off-hand speech, getting a round of applause on the statement that he was a native of Oregon.

Major Alfred F. Sears was called upon by the president to give the toast of "The commercial interests of the State of Oregon." He said:

Mr. President and Gentlemen: When the average parent is about to be confined with twins, it is, I believe, a matter of but little moment which is born first. I am tonight in this delicate situation, being big with two speeches, two [illegible] ones, and one of them being a funeral oration for a future [illegible] it is, to me at least, a serious consideration that the right one be first delivered. If, therefore, the completion of what I have to say tonight is a little serious for this festival of "jolly good fellows," do me the charity to impute it to the mixing up in embryo of the twin offspring.

Sir, if we were asked what is the most urgent, pressing present need of this city, there would be from every man of us one uniform reply. We should say, We require, more than anything else, more than everything else, railroad communication with the rest of the country. Concerning this point I take it there will not be a sign of discussion, but that we are all agreed on it. While there is a general feeling that we need this link to the rest of the world for our own convenience, we are also satisfied that it is necessary to the settlement and development of our territory.

A few years ago it fell to my duty, in the course of a dispute with a distinguished South American senator, to investigate the influences, material and political, of railways and population. It was then a serious question in Peru which should first engage the fostering care of governments.

Naturally enough, among a Spanish people, the example of Spain was adduced to show the folly of encouraging the state to invest in railways, since in Spain they had failed to pay dividends. It was thus contended that we must first have population and then the railways would follow of necessity.

I found, however, that while all the states of Europe were building railways and increasing rapidly in population, Spain, standing still in that class of enterprises had, in 1850, a population of [illegible], being just the same as shown by her census of [illegible], while, during that time the number had fallen [illegible] of railways during the last half decade of the period. With the enthusiastic energy of a people suddenly aroused the railway system of the country was vigorously developed and the population of poor old Spain went right up to 16,000,000, and has ever since been the subject of a growth as naturally healthful as could have been expected in a country torn by revolution, so that Spain received her dividends in [illegible]

This fact, so interesting, I think I may say startling, led me to a study of the comparative progress of railways, wealth and population in the United States, and I learned a truth valuable to the business energy of our city, that new states increase in population and old states in money wealth in proportion as they plunge into the "railway craze."

This fact has a significant value for [illegible]. With the completion of lines now under construction, this isolated northwest corner of the land becomes knitted to the great empire of the nation and the sluices are opened by which population enters [illegible] country.

[illegible]

There will be [illegible] the genius of men who, like Villard, comprehend the immense possibilities of the present future and recognize the value of placing this comparatively empty region in such communication with the world that the emigrant has a fair show at [illegible]

[illegible] the Northern Pacific [illegible] the Columbia river and the Cascade mountains [illegible]

Sir, the law of commerce, the law by which the [illegible] the natural channel between the [illegible] is, therefore, the natural channel of [illegible] of that region, just as surely as the products of the Mississippi valley go down that river to the sea since Capt. Eads has opened the gate. Just so [illegible]

[illegible] with a cargo of wheat and flour. This was followed in April, 1869, by the bark Helen Angier, loaded with wheat for Liverpool, [illegible] in the Liverpool Produce Exchange. [illegible]

The northwest is becoming better known [illegible] abroad, [illegible] California is [illegible]. The general government is turning its attention this way and is sending its engineers [illegible] to construct public works and improve our rivers and harbors. [illegible] the number of vessels that have crossed the bar, coming and going, and the relative number of disasters that have occurred [illegible] comparatively safe entrance, [illegible]

THE BIBLE REVISION.

Disapproval of the work in England.

LONDON, May 22.—The revised version of the New Testament, published on Tuesday, was waited for with keen interest, and was received with an almost unbroken chorus of disapproval. The public are astounded at the number and character of the changes in the authorized text. The bishop of Gloucester, in presenting the work to the convocation, admitted that [illegible] the gospel the changes average nine in each five verses, and in epistles three changes in each verse. Elaborate criticisms appear in most of the daily papers, all condemnatory and reminding the revisers of a disregard of their pledges to introduce the fewest alterations possible. These articles quote a score of examples where the changes were purely frivolous and capricious, and denounce the self-opinionated scholarship of the motley combinations of theologians and professors which has disfigured, mangled and made unrecognizable some of the noblest passages of the bible. The Saturday Review complains of the childish pedantry of the revisers, and describes the new version as sadly inferior to the old one in general vigor and beauty of language. It predicts that it will never come into general use. Other papers express in similar terms their grief, astonishment and regret at the revisers' wanton disregard of the reverence and love felt by the English people of the existing text, saying that the revisers may know Greek but not English, and protesting against defacing the noblest monument of English prose. It is understood that an act of parliament is required to enforce the use of the new version by the established church. The government have no intention of proposing such an act. Meantime 2,000,000 copies have been sold. Cambridge and Oxford universities, who own the copyright, are competing with each other in rather an undignified manner, but both are at present unable to supply the orders received after April. The testament is published in various styles, at prices from one shilling to two pounds. The Cambridge edition is the better printed. In the popular judgment the tampering with a form of prayer familiar to every family in the land, is sufficient to condemn the entire work. The book sells for the moment, but the old version will hold its grounds. The crowds at the distribution offices have been so great that traffic in the streets has been almost stopped. The revision committee on the Old Testament has closed its sixty-ninth session and carried the revision to the end of Solomon's Songs.

ROBERT HALL AS A PREACHER.

The Rev. Paxton Hood gives this graphic account of one of Robert Hall's sermons in a village chapel:

We remember to have heard a dear departed friend tell how, when a boy, he was taken by his father one still summer evening across the Northamptonshire fields—I believe it was to the little town of Thrapstone—to hear Robert Hall. It was one of those old village chapels with the square galleries. As in the instance of Chalmers, the place was crowded with plain farmer folk and a sprinkling of intelligent ministers and gentry from the neighborhood. The minister came in, a simple, heavy but still impressive looking man, one whose presence compelled you to look at him. In due course he announced his text: 'The end of all things is at hand: be sober and watch,' etc. Quite unlike Chalmers, his voice was not shattering, [illegible] thin and weak. There was no action at all, or only a kind of nervous twitching of the fingers, more especially as the hand moved and rested upon the lower part of the back, where the speaker was suffering almost incessant pain. As he went on [illegible] the deepening evening shades falling through the windows of the old chapel, his voice first [illegible] then charmed and fascinated his hearers one after another. The whole place seemed as if beneath a great spell. As he talked about 'the end,' the spell upon the people seemed to begin to work itself out into an awful, fearful restlessness. First one, then another, rose from his seat and stood stretching forward in a kind of fright and wonder. Still there was no action; only the following out of that thin voice with a marvellous witchery of apt and melodious words. [illegible] through them 'the end of all things' sounded like some warning bell. More people rose, stretching forward. Many of those who rose first, as if they felt some strange power upon them, they knew not what, got up and stood upon their seats, until, when the great master ceased, closing his pathetic accents, the whole audience was upon its feet, intensely alive with interest, as if each one had heard in the distance the presages and preludes of the coming end, and felt that it was time to prepare. My friend used to speak of that never-forgotten moment, that summer evening in the old chapel, as one of the most memorable in his life.

Medieval Theology.

[Froude, in Good Words.]

Medieval theology had been formed at a time when the relations of matter and spirit had been guessed at by imagination, rather than studied with care and observation. It was now well known that mind acted on mind and body upon body. If ideas reached the mind through the senses, it was by method and sequence which, if it could not be fully understood, yet so far as experience went, was never departed from. The Middle Ages, on the other hand, believed in witchcraft and magic. Incantation could call up evil angels and control the elements. The Catholic theory of the sacraments was the counterpart of enchantment. Outward mechanical acts, which, except as symbols, had no meaning, were supposed to produce spiritual changes; and spoken words to produce, like spells, changes in material substance. The imposition of a bishop's hands conferred supernatural powers. An ordained priest altered the nature of the elements in the Eucharist by consecrating them. Water and a prescribed formula regenerated an infant in baptism. The whole church, it was true, had held these opinions down to the sixteenth century. But so it had believed that medicine was only efficacious if it was blessed; so it had believed that saints' relics worked miracles. Larger knowledge had taught us that magic was an allusion, that spells and charms were frauds or folly. The reformers in the same way had thrown off the notion that there was anything mysterious or supernatural in the clergy or the sacraments. The clergy, in their opinion, were like other men, and were simply set apart for the office of teaching the truths of religion. The sacraments were symbols which affected the moral nature of those who could understand them, as words or pictures, or music, or anything else which had an intelligible spiritual meaning. They brought before the mind in a lively manner the facts and principles of Christianity. To regard them as more was superstition and materialism. Evangelicalism had been represented to me as weak and illiterate. I found it so far in harmony with reason and experience, and recommended as it was by personal holiness in its professors, and general beauty of mind and character, I concluded that Protestantism had more to say for itself than my Oxford teachers had allowed.

NEW YORK FREIGHTS AND MARKETS.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The freight market still presents a quiet front and the movement is rather moderate, although more than ought to be expected at this season. The Valley Forge is the most advanced vessel in berth and will finish Monday. The Farragut will close about the 5th prox. Rates are firmer on a basis of $8 per ton, but this is due to prospective scarcity. Ships are very scarce, few being due here the next 60 days, while the lines have not enough under charter to last that length of time.

Railroad freights keep up to the average. Shipments for the past week included 130 pkgs tobacco, 300 cs coal oil, 50 cs champagne, 216 cs canned goods, 14 cs brandy, 60 cs cocoanuts, 60 bbls whisky, 2000 pkgs starch, 20 bags nuts, 988 bbls oysters, 27 bags coffee, 400 bxs lemons, 10 bbls currants, 100 cases milk, 100 kegs herrings, 10 bxs soap.

Market quiet and firmer.

THE BOSTON WOOL MARKET.

BOSTON, May 27.—The demand for wool has again been active, and sales of the week have been about 215,000 lbs of all grades and qualities. This is a falling off from last week, but quite as large business as could have been expected. Full current rates have been obtained for all desirable lots, but no advance has been or could be realized. Manufacturers are willing to purchase on the present basis of prices, but would hesitate to take hold at any higher figures. Sales of X Ohio and Pennsylvania have been made at [illegible] XX, [illegible] according to quality and condition, and No. 1 at [illegible], these prices being the same as those of last week. Michigan and Wisconsin fleeces have been sold at [illegible] for X, [illegible] for No. 1; fine delaine and medium combing firm, with sales at [illegible]; considerable Kentucky and other unwashed combing at [illegible], coarse grades combing, very dull and can only be sold at low figures. Unwashed wools have been in fair demand, with sales at [illegible] and medium at [illegible]. California wool quiet, and new spring hard to sell except at loss. Pulled wools in demand, large sales have been made at [illegible], mostly [illegible] for supers.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN,

The Most Successful Physician on the Pacific Coast in the Treatment of

ALL CHRONIC & DIFFICULT DISEASES.

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of Disease of the generative organs or private disease. He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

FOLLIES OF YOUTH,

Such as SPERMATORRHŒA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organizations broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Lost manhood perfectly restored. Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, and all Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail. Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for list.

King of the Blood.

Is not a "cure-all," but a blood-purifier and tonic. Impurity of blood poisons the system, deranges the circulation, and thus induces many disorders, known by different names to distinguish them according to effects, but being really branches or phases of that great generic disorder, Impurity of Blood. Such are Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Constipation, Nervous Disorders, Headache, Backache, General Weakness, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Kidney Disease, Piles, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Disorders, Pimples, Ulcers, Swellings, &c., &c. King of the Blood prevents and cures these by attacking the cause, impurity of the blood. Chemists and physicians agree in calling it the most genuine and efficient preparation for the purpose. Sold by Druggists, $1 per bottle. See testimonials, directions, &c., in pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," wrapped around each bottle.
